Topeka .- An animated petition, con sisting of 132 of the 189 orphans who are inmates at the state home at Atchison, was presented to the Kansas legislature the other day by Senator Balle Waggener, in a final effort to influence the lawmakers to appropri ate $40,000 for a manual training and domestic science building for the in stitution. Headed by Waggener the children marched from the senate to the house, from the house to the treasurer's office, and wound up with a visit to Governor Capper.

"I am not asking much of this legis lature," Waggener told the members of the house. "There is no political preferment I want; no personal ambitions left to satisfy. My race is almost run. The only ambition I have left, is to have the state of Kansas take care of these helpless little ones." Waggener spoke against the advice of his physician, as he is not physically strong. PRUDENT TREATMENT OF EWE

In Winter Keep Her on Clover or Alfalfa Hay Until After Lamb Comes-Give Some Wheat Bran.

A sensible treatment of the ewe that lambs in winter is to keep her mostly on clover or alfalfa hay until after her lamb comes. There will be no need to limit the amount of hay that she consumes after lambing and then when her lamb takes all her mllk and wishes more, begin feeding her a little wheat bran. For a week bran will suffice, gradually increasing the amount fed, then there may be added to it a little chopped corn or barley and a little later some oil-meal. A pound a day of this mixture will keep her in good milk flow and it must be gradually led up to for about

About the right proportions of this nixture are 100 pounds of wheat bran, 100 pounds of chopped corn and 20 unds of oil-meal. This with clover or alfalfa hay will push her to a very heavy milk flow. If she is a large ewe she may consume more than a pound to advantage, as much as two pounds being consumed by some large Dorset ewes.

If this feed is so gradually introduced to the ewe that her digestion is not disturbed nor her milk flow stim ulated too much at first, there is small danger of overfeeding her, supposing that the lamb is to be pushed for early market. Her unselfish nature turns the feed quickly into milk and little of it goes to nourish her own body.

HORSES IN STORMY WEATHER

Sufficient Care Not Always Observed When Animal Has Been Heated After Strenuous Drive.

It is not generally realized to what an extent loss in horseflesh is suffered on account of exposure in stormy and cold weather, not only in cities, but also on farms. When the horse is driven rapidly or required to draw heavy loads, the action of the heart is increased, the blood circulates more freely and rapidly to the lungs and the surface of the body, and he becomes heated. Then the horse sweats more or less, and when in this condition is not quite high enough. But make its report to the governor not to be injured by currents of cold air or ion is more sensitive and more liable by exposure to rain. This is not sufficiently considered, and it is a very common occurrence to see such a horse left by his driver to stand in the street without any protection whatever until he is chilled through. Even where there is some appearance of care, in the way of providing a blanket for use on such occasions, this is frequently put on in such a way as to leave the most sensitive portions of the body exposed. When a horse is allowed to stand so the currents of cold air strike the breast, the result is likely to be more or less serious lung trouble, and this may be brought about in much less time than many

SLAUGHTER HOGS IN WINTER

Good Plan to Provide Double Hook, Bent Into "U" Shape, to Support Gambrel Stick.

Farmers use a pole to hang the hogs on at slaughtering time in winter. On this pole a gambrel stick is placed, the ends being inserted in the hock of the animal's leg. It is always a hard job to do the hanging and place the gambrel stick at the same time, writes Leslie R. Sutter of Towarda, Ill., in Popular Mechanics. A better way is to provide a double hook of metal, heavy enough to support the animal, and hang the gambrel stick on this book, as shown, The metal may be square or round, bent into a U-shape of such dimensions that it will fit over the timber used in hanging the hogs and with a hook formed on each end. It is an easy matter to insert the gambrel while the hog is lying on the work table, then lift it by the gambrel and place the latter on the hooks.

Winter Shed for Wagons. If there is no room in the barn for the wagons during winter time, a few dollars will build a shed in which to shelter them from the storms. The saving in paint and strength of wood would astonish you if there was any way to estimate it.

Fresh Pork Is Relished. Have you got a pig in the pen for attening? Fresh pork is relished at this time of the year and there is no reason why the farmer should not be entitled to the best that may be had. The farmer's wife has plenty of work to do this time of year without dressing chickens.
